RAPE CULTURE: A Survivor's Perspective

FREE

Monday, April 25 | 7 p.m. | Penn's Inn

Brittany Piper was 20 years old when she was brutally raped by a man pretending to be a good Samaritan. Years later, she refuses to keep silent as she gently unravels this sensitive topic with audiences. As a survivor and women's studies scholar, with extensive work in local and international organizations (including Rape Crisis Centers in conflict countries), Brittany is able to use her unique perspective as a survivor AND leading sexual violence expert, to compassionately welcome audiences into the conversation— allowing an inclusive culture for all voices, and a deeper understanding of this pervasive issue.
